

It has come to my attention that the FCC has introduced a new broadcast service (LPFM) that could form a possible threat to my local FM station, K-Love (90.7). I am from the Eastern Shore of Virginia and years back some residents fought to not have a radio transmit tower erected so K-Love could broadcast from Norfolk to this area. The radio tower was passed and we have been able to listen to good, clean, morally good "Contemporary Christian music" since this time. Before this we had no Contemporary music through radio that could reach us. This is the only wholesome "music" that the teens around here have to listen to not excluding us adults that love this type of music. This is where we can get the latest up to date music so we know what is out there on the selling market. I am not only a listener to K-Love but a supporter financially and prayfully. It would be a total loss to many in this community and the USA if K-love and the support, love, and music it brings into my home, community and the individual lives it touches were to be replace by a Low Power FM. It is very important to me and to others in my community if you were not to replace K-love so it would be forced off the air. K-love does bring public interest to our community. It tells us of things that are going to happen in our community, the latest news reports, the latest concert happenings, the best Christian music and not excluding the love, prayers and sometimes laughs it brings to the hurting, the sick and the lonely. I know that K-love is appreciated around here or the tower that transmits it radio waves would never been passed. I am asking you sincerely to not let the LPFM force off air the K-Love signal. It would be a "very sad day" indeed for many on the Eastern Shore of Virginia if you did. Thank you for hearing me out. Sincerely in Christ Jesus, Debbie Wood.
